Thursday, Nov. 8 @ 8pm Green River by Rachel White

Edith, a smart girl caring for her sick father and wild sister, lives in a small and defunct mining town in Kentucky. Charlie is a lonely drifter who senses her repressed ambition, and aims to draw it out. As Edith's father lay dying, the two head off to a small diner on the edge of town, where Edith must choose between a life in town and a life with Charlie. (Please join Rachel for a talk-back after her play.)

Friday, Nov. 9 @ 8pm Comes a Faery by James McLindon

An eight-year old girl, whose single mother has been deployed overseas and left her with a less-than-willing aunt, is visited by a cantankerous Irish fairy who may or may not have escaped from a favorite storybook. Has he come to keep the lonely child company ... or to lead her down darker paths? (Please join James for a talk-back following his play.)

Saturday, Nov. 10 @ 2pm The Prediction by Michael De Vito

In 1935, a family of German Jews escapes the Nazis aboard a freighter bound for Cuba. Officially denied entry, they must decide whether to return to Germany to take their chances, or enter Cuba illegally, and dangerously. (Please join Michael for a talk-back following his play.)

Saturday, Nov. 10 @ 8pm How the Dog Runs by Dan O'Neil

A young couple intending to celebrate their engagement and introduce him to her family, instead find themselves facing the imminent death of their matriarch at a lakeside cabin on the Fourth of July. As they wait, family conflicts inevitably come to the surface. (Please join Dan for a talk-back after his play.)

Sunday, Nov. 11 @ 2pm The Widow of Tom's Hill by Aleks Merilo

Set in a small Washington town under military quarantine, a young sailor and newly-mothered widow from opposite sides of the blockade engage in a dangerous game of cat-and-mouse, putting not only their lives in the balance but the village's, and perhaps the country's, as well. (Aleks is unable to attend, but we will hold a discussion and forward the audience Q+A to him.)

Sunday, Nov. 11 @ 6pm Love / Sick by John Cariani

A series of love stories - some gone wrong and others gone right - explore romance in the suburban jungle. (Please join John for a talk-back following his play.)
